COUNCIL ORDERS STREET REPAIRS

Council met Monday evening for the usual monthly meeting when the bills of the month were ordered paid and reports of committees received.

A new lease was authorized for a public dump on the Ervin land west of town. The dump will not be open to the public but under the care of one person selected by council.

The question of repairs for Xenia avenue brought up some discussion. The street is in bad condition. It was decided to make temporary repairs this season and then prepare for a permanent street improvement next year. Mr. Funseth reported that the County Road Roller would be available at the right time, according to County Engineer Davis.

Council took action for street oil and authorized the clerk to advertise for bids. It was determined to use a better grade of oil this year, this being the advice of Engineer Davis. The tar oil has a tendency to rot the stone and an asphaltum oil will be used, the same grade as the state put on the Columbus pike section last fall. There will be some difference in the cost of the oil selected but it will be worth more in preserving the street.

The Civics class in company with their instructor, Mrs. Anne O. Wilson, of the High school, attended council meeting to get some idea of village government and the part that council had in it.

Dr. C. L. Kimmel Sells To Dr. Hamilton

Dr. J. N. Hamilton, Cincinnati, has purchased the dental office of Dr. C. L. Kimmel, and possession was given this week. Dr. Hamilton is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Dental College class of '26. He has since been employed as school dentist by the Cincinnati public schools. We understand that Dr. Kimmel expects to take a position at Longview hospital, Cincinnati. He also has been considering taking a law course, but his plans along that line are not yet definitely formulated.

Mrs. O. L. Brown Dies In Defiance

Friends here of Mr. H. H. Brown, local druggist were grieved to learn of his mother's death some days ago at a hospital in Defiance.

The Oakwood News has the following to say concerning Mrs. Brown's death:

"Mrs. O. L. Brown, who was taken ill a week ago last Saturday with blood poison caused from a crack in one of her fingers of her right hand, died at the hospital in Defiance Wednesday morning surrounded by her family and a few friends."

"It was thought, after the hand was lanced and tubes inserted in the arm to draw out the poison, that she was getting along nicely until Tuesday night when she took suddenly worse and the absent members of the family were sent for."

"Mrs. Brown was a faithful worker in the church, president of the Women's Home Missionary Society, a member of the Ladies' Aid, the W. C. T. U., and a teacher of a class of girls."

She was missed not only by her family but by the community as well. With her passing Oakwood loses one of its best citizens."

ATTORNEY SMITH TO HEAR CLAIMS

Judge S. C. Wright has appointed Attorney George Smith as commissioner of insolvents for this county and the attorney has qualified. He will hear applications from those who want to take this means of clearing their standing in the county— and also to escape prison sentence. The commissioner will receive no salary but he paid fees for each case.

Under the decision of the Supreme Court prisoners cannot be held in jail more than 60 days for failure to pay a fine. Most of the cases will be that of liquor violators who are now in the county jail. The court has held a fine is a debt and that 60 days is the limit for a jail sentence where the fine cannot be paid.

Attorney Frank L. Johnson has applications for the hearing for Earl Cline, serving out two fines of $1,000 and costs, each. Fred Harris and Ben Lewis, each in for $1,500 fines, and Arnew White.

Charles Smith of this place, colored, a ditcher, has been in jail for many months but cannot come under this plan to get liberty as he is the owner of property.

There are other cases pending in the upper courts that will take advantage of the insolvency route to escape payment of the fine if the decisions are against them.

Cedarville College Is Bequeathed Sum of $25,000

Mrs. Christine Arbuckle, Wealthy Pittsburgh Woman Remembers College In Her Will—A Large List of Bequests to Organizations In Which She Was Interested—Also Remembers Her Pastor, Dr. J. Alvin Orr.

According to the United Presbyterian, published at Pittsburgh, Cedarville College will come into possession of $25,000 by the terms of the will of Mrs. Christine Arbuckle, of the wealthy family that made famous a brand of coffee bearing that name.

Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College stated yesterday that he had no information about the bequest other than what was contained in the United Presbyterian.

The bequests mentioned total more than a million dollars. A former Cedarvillian, Dr. J. Alvin Orr, gets $10,000 and $3,000 additional annually for a period of five years. Mrs. Arbuckle was a life-long member of the First church, North Side, of which Dr. Orr is pastor. She has always been a liberal contributor to church and benevolent work and her will makes many bequests for worthy organizations. She gave $1,000,000 to the New World Movement some few years ago. She also erected a Community House for the First church at a cost of $325,000. She once gave Muskingum College $250,000.

Bequests mentioned in the will are: First Church $200,000; $700,000 endowment for the Community House. Dr. Orr, as stated above.

Cedarville College, $25,000; Allegheny General Hospital, $20,000; women's missionary society of First Church, $10,000; ladies' aid society, $10,000; Women's Board, $10,000; Home for Incurables, $10,000; Home for Aged, $10,000; Orphan's Home, $10,000; Columbia Hospital, $20,000; Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, $10,000; Y. M. C. A., $10,000; Y. W. C. A., $10,000; and Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, $5,000.

The residue of the estate was left to a nephew and two nieces, Mrs. Arbuckle was 85 years old at the time of her death. The late J. R. Orr, a graduate of the late J. R. Orr, is also the President of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College.

The bequest is one of the largest ever made to Cedarville College. The late William Gibson, Cincinnati, left the sum of $25,000 for the founding of Cedarville College but $20,000 was the College. He is also the President of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College.

Followed Wishes Of Their Constituency

Messrs. Leybourn and Keifer, the two representatives from Clark county voted against the extra one half mill tax on real estate in the legislature. The representatives first gave their electors an opportunity to express themselves on this measure as to how they should vote. The two gentlemen learned that the voters in Clark county did not favor the one half mill levy and they each voted against it. To the average tax payer that represents "representation" and Clark county electors have a good word for their representatives. They did not act on so important measure and then tell the public to like it whether they wanted it or not. The farmers are asking some important questions these days. Most of them want to know where the Ohio Farm Bureau and Grange strength was all the time the legislature was shooting a hole in the farmer's pocketbook.

Scholarship For Boys At Wesleyan U.

PRES. SMITH WILL PREACH

Dr. Albert E. Smith, president of Ohio Northern University, Ada, will preach Sunday at the M. E. church.

FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 1927.

MORE MONEY NEEDED FOR SALARIES

There is good reason why the legislature has passed a law adding an additional tax rate on all of the property owners of the state. The state is broke, many of the funds are now overdrawn. In addition the legislature is bound to increase the salaries of the law makers. A few days ago the Senate voted to increase salaries of members of the legislature fifty per cent. We are informed that this extra tax levy will cost the Pennsylvania railroad company the huge sum of $141,000 in addition to the regular taxes paid this past month. It is estimated that the new tax rate will take nearly $50,000 out of Greene county. None of this money comes back to be used in the way of improvements or any betterment for the public. The home and farm owners are to pay the bill.

While the legislature is increasing salaries other forms of taxation are being sought. There is the gasoline tax to help build roads in counties where there is no public spirit for that sort of an improvement. After taxing the farm owners for progressive improvements it is planned now to make them give financial aid to other counties by use of the gasoline tax. This one cent additional tax is not for upkeep of roads but for the construction of new roads. Attorney General Edward Turner is out with an opinion that may yet defeat the unjust purpose of the legislature in passing the additional gasoline tax bill. He holds that the bill may not meet constitutional requirements in that cities would be called upon to pay the gasoline tax and not get anything back. The same with the smaller municipalities. It is also said that the proposed gasoline tax if passed will be subject to a referendum—and there is no guess-work about what the result will be.

When the tax bill is mentioned about the first thing asked is: "What will Governor Donahey do as to veto?" Both political parties were pledged to the state levy. Gov. Donahey and Myers Y. Cooper both campaigned against it last November. Governor Donahey may let the law stand and let the Republican legislature have the credit of violating a pledge to the public. The Governor could not be criticized for so doing. It is now certain that had Cooper been elected governor he would have been in worse shape with the legislature acting as it is than can Donahey be. Cooper a few weeks ago came out against the state levy and even the Hamilton county delegation voted solidly for it in both houses.

Governor Donahey is expected to veto the gasoline tax if it is passed.

CHICAGO AND HER GOVERNMENT

Chicago held a municipal election Tuesday with armed police about the polls to preserve order. Chicago with all her murders seems to like that kind of government where the disorderly element can rule. "Big Bill" Thompson, former cowboy was elected mayor which was the signal for a continuance of an open city. Mayor Dever made an effort to enforce the laws but only partially succeeded. Chicago will not be under restrictions. Policemen have been shot down in numbers in line of duty. The price they have paid in sacrifice of life has no value to the predominating element in Chicago.

Thompson was the Republican nominee. Had been mayor before so the city knew what it wanted. Thompson had the support of Senator Smith, who is fighting to gain his seat in the United States Senate. Smith is recognized as a dry leader in the state of Illinois. Smith bought his election with funds contributed by the big utility interests. Thompson promised an open administration. Chicago wants no Eighteenth amendment and as far as Thompson is concerned the under-world will have its way.

Thompson was mayor of Chicago during the war. He has not been forgotten for the stand he took against the draft. He was an open German supporter and opposed to this country in its fight. Thompson has insulted the American Legion at every turn. He is master of the situation in his city and can have his way. So can the bootleggers. Chicago's government is going to be watched with interest. Much has been said about New York City but Chicago holds the belt for murders, gang warfare and official corruption.

Lesson for April 10

PETER'S LESSON IN TRUST

LESSON TEXT.—Matt. 14:22-33.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid.
PRIMARY TOPIC.—Peter Trusts Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Helping Savior.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Why Peter Failed.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Christ the Ever-Present Helper.

The storm-tossed disciples on the sea at night are an example of the struggling followers of the Lord in the darkness of the present age, as they are tossed by the tempests of the evil one.

1. The Disciples on the Storm-Tossed Sea (vv. 22-24).

1. They are sent across the sea by Christ (v. 22).

"Jesus constrained His disciples to get into a ship." Doubtless His reason for this was to keep them from entanglement in the movement of the people to make Him King, for in John 6:14, 15, it is shown that the people were so excited by the feeding of the 5,000 that they were about to make Him King by force.

2. Christ dismisses the multitudes (v. 22).

This may be taken as typical of His rejection by the nation whose rulers had already rejected Him.

3. Christ praying alone in the mountain (v. 23).

Temptation to earthly honor and power had come to Him, therefore He went to the Father in prayer for relief and strength. The need of prayer is greatest at such times. According to Mark 6:48 He saw from the mountain the disciples toiling on the storm-tossed sea.

11. Jesus Walking on the Sea (vv. 25-27).

It was in the fourth watch of the night (v. 25).

He did not come to them immediately, but waited till almost dawn. However, it was the darkest part of the night. Their physical danger was great, but no doubt their mental perplexity was greater. They knew that the Lord had sent them, but why should they be in such straits if He sent them? The stormy sea is no evidence that the disciple is not in the Lord's appointed way.

2. The disciples alarmed at His coming (v. 26).

At the sight of Him they cried out for fear. They said: "It is a spirit." It was the coming of their best friend to deliver them from danger.

3. Jesus' words of comfort and good cheer (v. 27).

In the midst of their distress they heard the Master's words, "Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid." This changed their fear to joy.

111. Peter Walking on the Sea (vv. 28, 29).

1. Peter's request.

As soon as Peter recognized the voice of Jesus he cried: "Bid me come to thee on the water" (v. 28).

2. Jesus' response (v. 29).

At the Lord's "come," Peter left the ship and walked on the water. While he kept his eyes on the Lord he walked on the waves. His faith linked him with the divine power and was thus upheld. Vital faith in Jesus Christ will enable the disciple to outstride the storms of life.

1V. Peter Sinking (v. 30).

He took his eyes off the Lord and placed them upon the raging sea. This separated him from the divine power. We should learn to fix our eyes upon the Lord instead of upon our circumstances. Failure will surely follow if we give consideration to our circumstances and our own ability to master them.

V. Christ Rescuing Peter (v. 31).

When Peter began to sink he did the sensible thing. He cried out: "Lord, save me." Immediately Jesus stretched forth His hand and caught him. His salvation from death at the bottom of the sea was the result of the Lord taking hold of him. Jesus Christ in the incarnation was the divine hand reaching forth to rescue a sinking world. The significance of the expression "caught him" is made clear in Hebrews 2:10. It is there declared that Jesus took not upon Himself the nature of angels but took upon Himself the seed of Abraham. The same Greek word occurs in verse 31 of this lesson. We should understand from this that the eternal Son of God did not come in the form of a man in order to show man the way to God, but identified Himself with man through incorporation with Him. He came, not as an example, but as a Savior.

Battle and Victory

The battle with the powers of darkness may be long and hard but the victory is possible.—Eckles.

The Comeliest Ornament

The gentleness of Christ is the comeliest ornament that a Christian can wear.—William Armit.

Be Not Discouraged

Let us not be discouraged when the hand of God layeth heavy woes upon us.—Eckles.

Bible Verse and Prayer

A GOOD NAME THE BEST ASSET: A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold. Proverbs 22:1.

PRAYER.—Enable us, we pray Thee, O Lord of Life, to seek the things that do not pass in using, but the things which abide.

George and the South Seas

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

GEORGE ABBOTT was a very much engaged young man. His unceasing, pretty Sarah Makepeace, had her own loving ways of occupying his evenings and his office hours were frequently punctuated by telephone calls arranging to meet him for lunch or downtown after work on this errand and that. And because George really loved her and knew in advance what a capable, thrifty little wife she was some day going to be to him, he never thought of protesting that her apron strings were a bit long.

When George had kissed Sarah goodnight three times, he turned slowly homeward. Thoughtfully, too. For the first time that he could remember, he was disquieted by the thought that there were distant lands to be seen.

He neither was free to go nor had the money, as far as that went. But he and Sarah, who gave music lessons in between being engaged to him, were saving every possible cent towards a nest egg on which to secure a new home. When George reached his room, he found slipped under his door a white envelope addressed to him in handwriting only faintly familiar. Curiously, he opened it, and read the letter that was enclosed.

"My dear nephew"—so, read the letter—"I'm not dead yet nor thinking of dying. But I'm playing the dead aunt to my heirs. That is, I'm giving away now what you'd probably get later, each one of you. Please spend it to gratify some secret wish."

Attached to the inner sheet by a wire clip was a folded check for $2,000.

It is significant that George did not at once telephone the good news. In a way, it made their marriage an immediate possibility and surely one would expect that any engaged young man's secret desire would lie in that direction.

On the contrary, several days went by and still George said nothing to Sarah of the windfall. If he appeared to her, she gave no sign of noticing the fact. She even loaned him the magazine containing the South Seas story without a query as to why he wanted it.

To tell the truth, George was an enigma to himself. Here for months he had been longing to marry Sarah and now, at the instance of a silly yarn dealing largely with beating surf and honey-colored moons and dusky maidens, he was yearning to take a little trip all by himself and postpone settling down for a year or two. His unexpected legacy seemed to render legitimate this desire, yet how could he explain to Sarah?

"The obvious thing to do would be to get married and then, if he must blow the money in such a way, make the journey in Sarah's company. He loved Sarah, he was insanely jealous of her, but he could not help himself, and yet—how he wanted this last mad fling of irresponsible youth all by himself!

Suddenly he made up his mind to get it over with. He opened his mouth, shut it, cleared his throat and was about to speak when Sarah, laying down her work, leaned forward and regarded him.

"George," she said solemnly, "I've something to tell you. It's hard to say, but—well, I've changed my mind about getting married. I feel—well, before I settle down, I'd like to go somewhere, see somebody."

"See somebody?" echoed George, feeling as if the bottom of things were falling out.

"Yes," nodded Sarah, and into her eyes came a faraway ecstatic expression. "Sometimes I dream of distant lands where the off-shore surf beats on the coral reefs where honey-colored moons rise out of a velvet ocean, and strong, bronzed men in spotless suits, white helmets and Victoria crosses on their chests—"

"Sarah!" by this time George had risen. Then, with an effort to swallow his indignation, "Just how would you do all this?" he asked.

"Well," said Sarah, "I've nearly a thousand dollars I was saving towards the house and—"

"And you'd use that?"

"Perhaps when I come back," said Sarah gently, "I'll not mind marrying you. But first—oh, I want one last mad fling!" Rising, while her work fell to the floor unheeded, she threw her slender arms towards the ceiling.

Then she found herself seized and her arms, falling, fell on George's shoulders.

"Enough of this nonsense! I've just been left $2,000 by an aunt who isn't dead yet and we are going to be married at once. White helmets and Victoria crosses indeed! Tell me you do love me!"

So Sarah told him she did love him. What she did not tell him was that any girl knows when her lover has something on his mind and intuition plus some guess work will soon help her discover what it is.

Three weeks later, George's aunt received a letter.

"Dear Aunt: "Your welcome gift made possible a trip to Niagara falls, a lovely little blue runabout, and first payment on a five-room bungalow."

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)
Some find it a "man-killing job," but it seems to me to be the greatest of workaday tasks that an ambitious person with ideas can find—helping a community and at the same time making a worldly success for oneself. It is a vocation for optimists.—Charles H. Grasty.

THE SCHOOL LUNCH

The school lunch is a problem that daily bothers thousands of mothers, so that a few ideas and suggestions will be helpful.
One like the lunch to be tempting as well as nourishing, which means thought and planning.

The country child who trudges to school over long roads in the pure country air will need heartier and more satisfying foods than the child who leaves a heated house and is sheltered from wind and air.

In one neighborhood five mothers agreed to pack the lunch for one day a week. This gave the mothers a relief from the task and the children a change of food.

Baked apples, jellies and fruits of various kinds are always most satisfactory lunch basket foods.

Custards, when well baked, make most desirable food. With a sandwich and a few nuts and an apple, this will prove a most satisfying meal.

Peanut butter is enjoyed occasionally as a sandwich filling. There are so many kinds of sandwich fillings that there need never be one used too often to tire of it.

Brown bread spread with butter and well-seasoned cottage cheese in which a bit of onion juice and a few chopped nuts are added, is another good filling. Cheese, fish or eggs in various forms or combinations may be used, or a bit of chicken, lamb or beef.

Baked Apples.—Wash and core tart apples, plunge into a kettle of boiling water, drain and let cold water run over them. Place in a pan in a hot oven and bake until tender. Remove the skin if desired and serve with sugar and cream.

Deviled Ham.—Chop very fine one pint of boiled ham (more fat than lean), six hard cooked eggs, one teaspoonful of mustard (the made mustard), season and press into a mold. This will keep for months in cold weather and makes fine filling for sandwiches.

A prominent clergyman gives the following advice to husbands: "Never take ill-humor home. The stress of the day's work may have worn your patience thin. But remember that household duties are just as trying to the temper as any man's job, and go home smiling. A happy home life is the best basis of success."

About Your Health

Things You Should Know
by John Joseph Gaines, M.D.

DIABETES

My object in writing this article is to so acquaint my reader with the symptoms of the disease, that he will recognize them, and consult a physician at once otherwise the diabetes may reach a very difficult stage to handle, without exciting apprehension on the part of the patient.

To begin with, diabetes is not a kidney disease, though its first manifestations appear in that quarter. The patient notices at first, a very great over-action of the kidneys, with output as clear as water in the majority of cases; it may reach one, two or three gallons in quantity per day. An insatiable craving for sweets may be noticed; severe constipation is the rule, though not constant—many people begin to constipate without "trying" diabetes. Then, there is a "progressive feebleness"—the growing weaker and weaker without apparent cause. I once saw a strong man begin to grow weak, and "tired" all the time with no exertion to cause it; his limbs ached so much that he fancied he had rheumatism. Asked about his kidneys, he asserted that "they had never in life acted so well, two gallons or more a day!" This man died within three months—of diabetes, the disease having advanced too far to be remedied by any means known at that time, about twenty years ago. Whenever this feebleness sets in, and the patient's muscles begin to grow flabby with loss of flesh, and the kidney discharge is increasing rapidly, with constipation and craving for sweets, and for more and more water than is naturally required, it is best to have the physician make an analysis of the renal excretion, which in health amounts to about fifty ounces a day in the adult. No delay should be contemplated or indulged. The physician of today knows how to handle diabetes, the treatment of which would be out of place here.

Nearby and Yonder

By T. T. MAXEY
Tulipland

ALTHOUGH nature gave to Bellingham, Wash., a location—overlooking Puget sound and the San Juan archipelago on the one hand and adjacent to the celebrated Mount Baker scenic section on the other—that would make most any city's head swim with pride, the particular attractions, which Bellingham never gets done boasting about, are its tulips and its sunsets. In fact, Bellinghamites prefer to have their city referred to as "The City of Tulips and Beautiful Sunsets." Admittedly, both are extraordinarily beautiful.

As a matter of fact, Bellingham claims to be the tulip center of America. It grows something like two million bulbs annually, most of which are of that gorgeous cup-like flower, the tulip, the others hyacinths and narcissus. The government's tulip farm is located here because the climate and rainfall conditions making for the successful growing of this popular flower are quite similar to those which exist in Holland.
Thus it has come to pass that each year, by virtue of the complete co-operation of man and nature, one can look out upon thousands and thousands of tulips and hyacinths and narcissus in full bloom, a scene of distinctly unusual and brilliant, a riot of color, a sort of dream picture the like of which the world cannot be witnessed elsewhere in America, which gives to the beholder a sure-enough touch of what might be termed tulipmania. 'Tis then, generally the first week in May, that Bellingham pulls off her spectacular stunt—the Annual Tulip Festival and Blossom show—which draws lovers of the beautiful flowers from states both far and near.

It Was a Criminal Success

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

MARIAN was sorry she had written that letter—but she was not sorry soon enough. Her regret came after she had mailed it. It was a trivial thing they had fallen out over, any way—Marian Ormsby and Harold Graves. Marian's letter to Harold was somewhat lengthy. But its meaning was clear—she gave Harold a pre-nuptial divorce on the ground of incompatibility of temper, his fatal heresy with regard to bobbed hair and his execrable taste in neckties. All was over between them! There were a few side remarks about obstinacy, self-sufficiency and ill nature.

Harold had been rather irritable and didactic. It is true. He had been annoyed by tangled business matters that day, the tangle caused by careless or stupid clerks and the ones thrown on him. Under such circumstances you could not expect a young man to be in an abnormally angelic mood—even if he was in love and his best girl was with him. All things considered, Harold had behaved very well. And Marian, who knew of his troubles, began to realize it when she came to think things over—after she had mailed the letter.

When Harold got the letter he read it over and over again. At first his thought of writing an answer in the argumentative vein. No, that would not do; it would only be continuing the quarrel. Then he considered writing one in a humble and apologetic strain, pleading for forgiveness and begging to be taken again into favor. But he wasn't humble and he told himself that Marian had as much to apologize for as he had. A humble, cringing letter would be insincere—and besides Marian did not like humble and cringing men any too well. He loved Marian with all his heart—but still he wanted to stand on something like an even footing with her.

Then he took a sheet of letter paper and sat down at his typewriter. Marian always used a typewriter and so did Harold; and they were of the same make. Harold wrote only two brief sentences. Then he took his production from the typewriter and laid it on his writing desk; laid Marian's letter beside it; got a piece of tissue paper and traced Marian's signature; which signature he transferred to the bottom of the few lines he had just typed. The forger grinned as he did it.

Then he folded the letter he had thus completed, placed it in an envelope, sealed it and directed it to himself. From a letter he had received that day he soaked off a canceled postage stamp and having dried it affixed it with muscicage to the envelope into which he had placed his forgery. All this being accomplished he ordered his car brought up from the public garage where he kept it and drove over to see Marian.

When Harold came bursting into her presence, all smiles and with a cheery greeting, she gave a little glad start and cried: "Oh, Harold!" Then recollecting herself she drew away from him as he tried to catch her in his arms and said laughingly, "Mr. Graves! What does this mean? Keep away from me, sir. Explain yourself. This is an outrage. Did you not get my letter?"

"Sure thing," replied Harold affecting surprise. "That's why I hurried over. Marian, you are the real thing and I always knew you were. Just a little tired last night, eh? And I didn't make allowances. The fault is all mine, my dear. I guess I was a little peevish, too. There is nothing to patch up. We are just two old siffles, that's all. But it was so good of you to write as you did and to take all the blame yourself. Come, give us a kiss." And he took one in spite of her struggles and smothered protests.

"Now," said Marian when she had finally broken away and sunk into a chair—"now, perhaps, you will tell me what you have been talking about. What do you mean by my letter taking all the blame to myself? Are you crazy? or can't you read?"

"Why, I mean what I say," replied Harold. "What are you driving at? Here is your letter." He laid down one end of the sealed envelope so that the letter had every appearance of having gone through the mail, and had been opened by its recipient. Without glancing at the address—which might have excited suspicion from its lack of similitude to her own writing—Marian drew out the letter and read it.

"Why, why?" she gasped, "what does this mean? I never wrote this letter."

"Isn't that your signature?" asked Harold sternly.

"Yes, it appears to be," said the puzzled Marian.

"The letter read: 'Dear Harold—I guess I was a little irritable last night and didn't mean half I said. Come around tonight and we will patch up our little lovers' quarrel. With love, Marian.'"

"I never wrote it. I can't understand it," said the perplexed girl, "but it goes." A week later, when Harold told her of his forgery they came near having another tiff.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—George Harvey was a Reporter.

WHEN I reached my eighteenth birthday, my native state of Vermont was not big enough. I needed more room. I wanted to educate a whole lot of people at once, so I went to the Springfield Republican. I had collected enough money in some way to buy my ticket and financed my first enterprise by borrowing the entire length of my journey from my grandfather to my sister, amounting to ten dollars. With that store of capital I ventured forth and in due course of time I reached the office of Samuel Bowles, the younger.

"The first question for consideration that arose related to compensation for services, presumably to be rendered. He asked me politely, but firmly, how much I expected. I had my dreams of opulence due to arrive at that time, but when I looked upon that impassive face and reflected that perhaps after all I was not absolutely essential to the successful continuance of the Republic, my courage coiled out and from the $15 a week that I had fondly anticipated spending I got down to ten dollars. He said six was about right. To that I demurred and we discussed the subject thoroughly. Finally we compromised on $5.

"I passed my twenty-first birthday as a reporter, serving after the Springfield Republican, the Chicago News and the New York World in turn.—G. B. M. Harvey."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE HONEYMOON

WOULD you not be indignant if for the origin of that divine habit, the honeymoon, I could give you nothing more romantic than the theory that it dates back to the time when a prospective husband captured his woman and changed her by the hair to his cave, where, to prevent her from appealing to her relatives for release, he kept her for a time in seclusion?

Likewise, wouldn't you hate me, hopeful girls, and you, sanguine youths, soft at me, were I to tell you that because love has been likened to the moon, which begins to wane when at its full, the married couple's period of mutual affection is called the "honeymoon"?

Both theories have been advanced for the origin of the custom and its name. The fact is, however, that the honeymoon is traced back directly to an ancient practice of the Teutons by which newly wedded couples drank mead or hydromel (honey wine) for thirty days after their marriage—the "honey month," or "honeymoon."

To the glory of the honeymoon be it said that it was to this custom that Attila, the cruel and insatiable king of the Huns, succumbed. It is said that his death was caused by drinking too much on his wedding night.
